

Artists get recognition

Tshifhiwa Masutha

Young pupils from in and around Mabopane received recognition for their arts and crafts at the Pretoria Art museum last Saturday.

The Ifa Lethu Foundation, in partnership with Tshwaranang African Giant Arts and Crafts, recently hosted an outreach project for artists and the development of skills for students of Mabopane.

Their work included painting, drawing, sculpture, beading and poetry.

Thabo Pitso, a Fine Arts student at the Tshwane University of Technology, was awarded third prize for his painting.

He says he lives for art and he enjoys working with various colours.

According to Nar-

risa Ramdhani, CEO of the Ifa Lethu Foundation, the institution fosters a culture of understanding and healing through heritage.

"The ultimate goal for launching this project is to assist in the drive to promote Ifa Lethu's aim of bringing art closer to South Africa, through direct and interactive engagement with local communities," she says.
